

2010 Blogging Calendar

Funny, Strange & Do-Good Observances
You Can Blog About All Year

BlogEnergizer.com Presents

Brought to you by Lexi Rodrigo

A Word From The Publisher

Blogging can be very intensive. It can either suck up all your time or reward you very well for your efforts or both. In any project (like blogging) that demands a big chunk of your attention, planning is key. When you can sit back to take in the bigger picture of where you are heading, it is a lot easier to see how your blog can play a crucial role in helping you achieve those goals instead of just another to-do on your list.

That's one reason why we publish this blogging calendar. This will be the third year. Personally, every time I prepare the calendar at the end of the year, I always find awesome post ideas and what promotions or fun activities I can run in conjunction with the posts. This generates content and also increases a blog's visibility and recall.

This year, we have a new calendar format. While I really liked the traditional calendar format, it didn't leave much space to write out your own ideas. This year's linear format has a lot more space for you to pen them in. You can also use this as a planner to brainstorm and fill what you will blog about throughout the month. The color coding helps you quickly see where you are in the month, which days are weekends that you might want to take off and spot weekly events you may want to use as a theme for that whole week.

We hope you like and make full use of this calendar. Print it and drop it into your binder, take it everywhere you go to jot down post ideas. If you ever need more blogging help throughout the year, take BlogEnergizer Premium for a spin. We'll give you 30 prompts in 3 major topics to write about every single month - 90 in total, special learning resources, show you where the hot topics are, help you find guest bloggers, help you be a guest blogger, put the word out on your promotions and more.

All the best,

Lynette Chandler

What Is BlogEnergizer All About?

In a nutshell, BlogEnergizer is a unique service that serves up yummy blog food for hungry bloggers. We offer two levels of membership. Free and a Premium.

Free members receive new resources to blog about or share with your blog readers every week, delivered directly into your email inbox. A small example of what you can expect to receive are:

- Coupon offers from all types of businesses
- Free reports, music, any downloadable or mail in material that you can put up on your blog without having to worry whether you have permission to link to them or not. We already researched that for you.
- Guest blogger opportunities - connect with other bloggers to find and be found as a guest.
- Author or publisher review book requests
- Author or expert interview availability and requests (yes, there are experts within the bloggers' community too)
- Online events/activities or Contest announcements
- Online events/activities or Contest sponsor offers and requests

Why get all this? Because it helps bloggers, businesses and fellow bloggers. Sometimes, you just can't bring yourself to write out a thought provoking, earth shattering post. Maybe you're in a hurry or would just like to give something to your readers without paying out of your pocket. There are business owners who would love to help you out by providing you with that item.

Sometimes, you get busy or would like a fresh perspective on your blog. The guest blogger and expert resource is a great place for you to find people to connect with. Similarly, being a guest on another blog is a wonderful way to gain more exposure of your brand and your blog. If that sounds like what you need, visit BlogEnergizer.com to enter your name and email address. No payments and no logins are required. You can begin browsing our library of resources immediately and receive new ones at the start of each week.

Kick It Up A Notch

What if, you're simply looking for more blogging ideas, something to kick start your thinking and prompt your writing instead of staring at blank screen? The free membership looks great but you don't want to blog about other people's stuff so much. You just need help creating quality content of your own.

Then that is where the BlogEnergizer Premium membership can help. As a Premium member, you will receive 30 blogging prompts every single month. We cover 3 major topics, making it 90 prompts a month - Business, Health and Fitness and Home and Family and with just a little creativity, the prompts can be applied to any other topic.

Besides prompts, you can submit your own special offers, freebies, guest blogger availability and more to us. In other words, you can reach out to all our members through our system.

You also gain access to the real time hot words tool where you can quickly pin point the buzz and jump on the conversation on your blog too. There are bonus learning resources to help improve your blogging or business if you plan to make blogging pay. The best thing, the price to go Premium is awfully low, it'll shock you. Visit our Premium page to learn more.

We eagerly await to welcome you among our members. Happy Blogging and a most profitable 2010 to you.
